More Indictments Expected.

More indictments Expected.

It was soon found that repeated resales, or pyramiding, by wholesale soft coal dealers and speculators constituted an important factor in boosting prices. It was not long also before the Government Investigators uncovered the trail of wholesale graft and bribery extending all the way from the mines of Pennsylvania, Indiana and West Virginia to tidewater at New York harbor. Purchased favoritism in car distribution at the mines, fradulent use of priority shipment orders through collusion between profiteer speculators and dishonest employees or officers of public service corporations for the expediting of coal shipments—these and many other abuses ments—these and many other abuses were revealed. As an inevitable conse-quence, there have been indictments un-der the Lever act. There are likely to be more of them in this and in other Federal districts. But they are incidental to the main purpose aimed at—the re-duction of the cost of coal by lopping off the crushing burden of graft, bribery and profiteering, all of which in the end fell upon the bruised shoulders of the ultimate consumer.

In achieving that paramount purp the Government investigation has been to a large extent successful. There we to a large extent successful. There was a time when the spot price of soft coal at tidewater, with all these illicit and extortionate additional costs piled upon it, rose to $22.25 a ton, it can be bought now at from $12 to $16, and officials of the Department of Justice express the hope that ere long it will drop a $20 or $10 a ton.

ctals of the Department of Justice express the hope that are long it will drop to $9 or $10 a ton.

William McMuttrie Speer and Maxwell Mattick, the immediate representatives of the Attorney-General, when they undertook their task, mapped out a systematized programme of procedure. One of the first of their efforts was to enlist the aid and cooperation of legitlmate and honest wholesalers in the crusade against speculators and profiteers. Scores of more or less irresponsible men, whose names never had been heard in the coal trade, bad invaded the field—especially that of export coal—to while they were lured by promise of wholesalers, most of the reputable men engaged in the trade came into line when the attorney-General summoned them to toe it loyally.

There was held in the Whitehall Club. 17 Battery place, on August 24 last, a 17 Battery place, on August 18 highly important meeting of representa-tives of the wholesale soft coal trade. Government officials of the Department of fusition who are familiar with the bituminous coal trade scandal will not be surprised if the example set by Harry P. Limit Profit to 10 Per Cent. Now. Naturally, the proceedings of such a grievance committee are confidential in character. According to current reports in the trade, however, the wholesale coal men's committee on correction of abuses has been a very busy body of reformers since the early days of September. Unless the organization is misrepresented, the committee has found aloud for correction. That it is nown along the committee has found aloud for correction. That it is nown sincerely anxious to cooperate with the Department of Justice is not doubted. It was to the sequence of events and the consequent reformatory resolutions noted for Health preders above that Charles S. Allen, secretary of the Wholesale Coal Trade Association, referred when, in a statement given by him for publication yesterday, he said:

"The New York wholesale coal Trade Association, referred when, in a statement given by him for publication yesterday, he said:

"The New York wholesale coal trade Association he is in direct cooperation with the agents of the Department of Justice to expedite deliveries and keep prices down. We have signed agreements binding us not to accept more than 10 per cent. maximum gross profit, a rate approved by the United States Covernment to allow us a fair return."

Mr. Allen's statement stands unchallenged. He did not explain, however, that the millenntal conditions sketched by him are of quite recent consummantion, nor that they were precipitated, at least to some extent, by the correspondence with the Attorney-General, which the Herallo now makes public, and which did not occur until last August, when soft coal conditions had become so scandidous as to have become a stench in the nostrils of the public.

Restaurant Company Leases

The Eighteenth Amendment has curtailed the business of Reisenweber's so greatly that the company operating the restaurant has leased the greater part of the buildings at Eighth avenue and Fifty-eighth street to the United Cigar Stores Company for seventeen years. The lease was signed Saturday. Reisenweber's will continue their 'Crystal' and "Paradise" rooms. The rest of the buildings will be remodelled by the tobacco company into stores and shops for commercial purposes.

"Prohibition has cut deep inroads into our business," Louis Fischer, president of Reisenweber's said last night, "and where formerly the many buildings and floors of Reisenweber's kept pace with the needs of the times, we now find ourselves outgrown for present usefulness.
